GANG VIOLENCE INTENSIFIES

Gang-related shootings in the Warrens seems to have reached new heights. While the causes remain unknown, analysts are reporting that there were at least 100 deaths in the past 3 days.

Citizens are reminded that the Warrens are a Lone Star class "Z" zone. Further, DocWagon will not honor retrieval contracts for clients entering this area.

XCR SHAKEUP!

In the wake of recent shakeups in the upper managment of Xeverus Cosmetics Research Inc., XCR has announced that Samuel Halbert will take over as interim CEO. Halbert, 28, a relative unknown prior to XCR, succeeds his mentor Alesandro Ibáñez, the husband of the late owner of the company, Margaret Xeverus, daughter of XCR's founder.

Speculation was rife when Ibáñez was found dead earlier this week of an apparent heart attack. In the last two years, XCR has had a number of suspicious deaths. It began with the death of Margaret Xeverus at the hands of environmental extremists. Alesandro had the guilty parties hunted down. However, they were killed in an apparent suicide rather than be captured. Months later, Wapasha Blackwolf died on vacation near the town of Leadville. Speculation about a connection between the deaths proved unfounded when autopsy results confirmed that the heart attack had been brought on by a combination of stress and untreated latestage heart disease.

XCR stock had been suffering as several new products had not performed as well as expected. Reached for comment, Mr. Halbert said, "Alesandro was a revolutionary, a visionary. But he had trouble fitting into his new role. XCR's greatest successes come from a team effort. A man has to know not only how to give orders but how to take them also. It's a mistake I, and XCR, will not repeat."
